

LAW5013 Summative Assignment Questions 2025-26

Students should answer ONE of the following essay questions:

(a)

AI image generators (like Stable Diffusion, DALL-E and Midjourney) have made it possible to copy someone's likeness (their face, body and/or voice), leading to a rise in – sometimes problematic – deepfakes. Giving people a copyright, or performers' right, over the use of their likeness would be a suitable remedy to this problem.

Critically discuss the statement with reference to relevant literature and legal authority. Whilst comparative analysis is permitted, the UK must be one of the jurisdictions considered, in line with the School of Law marking criteria.

(b)

In tandem with the rise of new business models in the digital environment, creators now earn a lower income than ever before. Copyright law should ensure that creators should be fully and fairly paid when their work is used, in any context.

Critically discuss the statement with reference to relevant literature and legal authority. Whilst comparative analysis is permitted, the UK must be one of the jurisdictions considered, in line with the School of Law marking criteria.

(c)

Due to the ease of sharing and virality of content online, moral rights – like the right of integrity and the right of attribution – are more important in the digital environment than any economic rights.

Critically discuss the statement with reference to relevant literature and legal authority. Whilst comparative analysis is permitted, the UK must be one of the jurisdictions considered, in line with the School of Law marking criteria.

Word limit

Your essay must be no longer than 4,500 words. This includes footnotes and excludes the bibliography (the latter must be provided). Deductions for exceeding the word limit will apply per School of Law Policy.

Deadline

Wednesday 1 April 2026 at 4pm.

Grading

This essay constitutes 85% of your overall grade for the course and will be graded based on the School of Law Marking Scale.